

Glasgow Evening Times

Thursday 14 May 2009

Home is where the hard work is... but it's worth it

MORE than half (55%) of employees are working from home more often since the financial crisis began, a BT Business and Remote Employment study claims.

The need to save cash is the main reason for most (88%) of those who now conduct their working day from their living room, bedroom or even garden shed.

A total of 60% of workers are better off by being able to work from home.

The findings come on the eve of National Work From Home Day tomorrow.